

An electrical apparatus having resistance to atmospheric effects includes at least one electrical device and a packaging structure. The packaging structure substantially encloses the at least one electrical device. The packaging structure includes a corrosion-resisting agent.